COMMON COUNCIL

To Meet Again For Business Tonight.

MAYOR COURTNEY THREATENS MANDAMUS PROCEEDINGS.

Republicans Make an Unreasonable Demand.

Tonight the republican councilmen will be given another opportunity to meet and transact the city's business.

It is not expected, however, that they will present themselves at city hall. The notices for the meeting were sent out yesterday afternoon, so that the members were notified in time.

It will not be at all surprising if Webster is out of town. At any rate no one expects that a meeting will be held. The democrats will be on hand as usual.

This morning Mayor Courtney said he had not yet decided to ask for a writ of mandamus to compel the republicans to go into meeting. He had thought the matter over however, and some time during the day, he and City Solicitor Hogan will discuss the question and come to some decision.

The republicans seem to insist that the democrats should depose President Sullivan or admit that his election was fraudulent.

Now, this is an unreasonable proposition, inasmuch as no councilman who testified honestly regarding Mr. Sullivan's election can now admit that the election was fraudulent. To do so would be to stultify himself and admit to be true what they know to be false.

On the other hand the republicans would lose nothing by recognizing Councilman Sullivan as the de facto president.

SHEEHAN—Dennis W. Sheehan aged 38 years died this morning at his home 17 Harrison street. He was the well known janitor of the Training school.

AGAIN WE'VE WON

The Fitchburg Ball Team Badly Beaten.

THE MOST EXCITING GAME YET PLAYED.

Manager Thyne and Others Remembered by Friends.

And it came to pass that on one fair day in the month yclept May, there came unto this town a man whose fame had gone abroad even to the countries beyond Ayer Junction. And he did bring with him a collection of men of brain and brawn who twirled the festive sphere for the honor of a little town some where up there, where the people drink nothing but rain and where the newspapers number but two.

And a great crowd went out to see that man whose name was Larry and whose team was called after a girl with big feet named Trilby.

And this Larry with a bold, bad brazen front did put his Trilbies against an aggregation of ball players from the town wherein said Larry did once reside and behold when the victims had been led to the slaughter a struggle ensued, the like of which had never been seen for years on those old Fair grounds, and though they died hard and becomingly, nevertheless, the Trilbies died and there was weeping and wailing and swearing in the little town beyond Ayer Junction and all was in darkness and the brass band which was to have escorted the returning victors through the streets of that little town heard the sorrowful tidings and forthwith changed from "Lo, the Conquering Heros Come," to the Dead march in Saul. It was the Fitchburg Mail that first bulletined the unwelcome news that Svengali had lost his hypnotic power and could no longer lead his Trilbies on to victory.

It was a day of plays and if you were not there you missed a good sized portion of your life. Never was there more excitement, betting or fun, not even in the old Manchester days, and every one of the 1500 people present took a very active part in the excitement and fun, while the betting was participated in by quite a number.

And why wouldn't it be a game worth seeing?

Lowell and Fitchburg are the two strongest teams in the association; had the latter won both would be tied for first place.

With the Fitchburgs are Donovan, Slines, Roach, McGuane and Castles; the owner is Charlie Cosgrove of Lowell and last, but by no means least, the manager, the only and original, copyrighted, trademarked and inimitable manager Lawrentius Josephus Thyne of Lowell.

The crowd turned out loyally, and each of the Lowell players on the visiting team and McGuane's inability to play, owing to an injury, was regretted by all, and deplored by the visitors, who needed him at different times during the game.

It was a jolly crowd of rooters that came down from Fitchburg and after they had become accustomed to the ways of a city that breaks all records for prompt payment of salaries, they got right in the game and amused every one around them.

"Wait till you see our lucky seventh inning," they cried early in the game. We waited and saw one man get as far as second and no further but the luck came not.

Among the Fitchburg rooters was a smart bit of a man with a crushed strawberry mustache and hair to match who cracked jokes all the afternoon, jollied the reporters with the ability of a republican office seeker and said he'd be d—d if he went away from the grounds before the last man was out even if he lost his train and had to go home by way of Boston, which he did. His front name is Freddy.

Then among the visitors was a crowd from Lawrence, including Jerry O'Sullivan, who brought his voice with him and Mike Bradley.

The local cranks were there to a man and made lots of noise. John F. Murphy guyed little Freddy from Fitchburg until the latter asked something about fire escapes.

"Mugs" O'Connell called everyone on the Lowell team a "stiff" and applauded so vociferously for Fitchburg that he cracked his voice and had to have it bandaged. Jimmie Hayes, the barber, sprang a joke that sent Sternberg's mascot into convulsions and there was a general good time.

Remembered by Their Friends.

At the opening of the game Umpire Hunt called Manager Thyne to the plate and Reporter Sternberg, in behalf of his News office friends presented him with a floral horse shoe, and Larry responded briefly while the crowd yelled.

In the second inning Larry was again called to the plate and this time Manager Mahoney, in behalf of Larry's many friends presented him with a gold watch, chain and charm. Turning to the grand stand Larry said: "My friends, I am very thankful to you for having watched me so beautifully and I will never forget you while I have this token of your kindness. I hope to be on time to the second all during the season."

When Steve Castles came to bat, one of the conductors of the street railroad presented him with a big bouquet, the gift of his former fellow employes, while Jack Condon, representing the Mathews presented him with a gold headed umbrella.

Then the Lowell team presented Fitchburg with a defeat.

The Game as Played.

Umpire Hunt called play shortly after three o'clock, with Lowell at the bat. McCarthy started with a single. Tebeau fanned out. Flanagan hit rapidly and both men were advanced by Coyle's base on on balls after Johnson had foul flied out to Slines. A passed ball which was blocked and not thrown to the pitcher's box let both in and Van Alstyne went out, Magee to Popkay. On the other side Hunt hit to Coyle, who fumbled and went to second on Johnson's error with Gillis' grounder. Stout hit a nice one which Van Alstyne intercepted nicely, but couldn't handle. Johnson got it and nailed Mr. Stout. Then that Lowell man Donovan, sent the ball way out to the track and made a tour of the bases and Castles went out, Coyle to Flanagan. Score 3 to 2 in favor of Fitchburg.

In the second, Lowell batted out six runs, O'Connor went out, Castles Popkay and then Outcault got his base, Hines advanced him on a single McCarthy filled the bases with another. Tebeau's hit to Stout who fumbled let in a run, and Flanagan's three bagger sent in the other three. Then Johnson went to first on balls, and two more errors came in on Coyle's three bagger, Van Alstyne and O'Connor went out. Fitchburg didn't score again until the sixth.

Then for three innings neither side scored and the playing of both sides was superb Hines made a fine running catch in the fifth.

Lowell added one the sixth on McCarthy's three bagger and Flanagan's sacrifice hit.

Fitchburg's streak of luck came in the sixth for with the score 9 to 3 against them they made six runs and a tie. Popkay went out Van Alstyne to Flanagan, and Stout made a hit. Donovan the next batter knocked another home run way out in left field, O'Connor muffed Castles fly and a base on balls by Slines advanced him. Both scored on Roach's three base hit. Lawson made a single and stole second. Hart hit to Johnson who threw to Tebeau but the latter let it go through him and Lawson scored, making the sixth run. The next two men went out.

Fitchburg's lucky seventh came next but they were all through for the day and didn't score after the sixth.

Then Flanagan's Pets won the game by making three runs in the seventh and then they were all through scoring. There were two men out and the Fitchburg crowd was sure that their team was going to win when O'Connor hit to Popkay who let the ball go through him. Outcault hit to Stout who did the same thing and the doctor went to third. Hines made a hit and this followed by singles by McCarthy and Tebeau let in the three runs which won the game.

A perusal of the score will show that the game was unusually close in all respects, though Lowell hits were more timely and their errors less untimely.

The Game Elsewhere.

CHICAGO, May 9.—Such a poor exhibition of fielding as the Bostons showed has seldom been seen here. The Colts outplayed them at every point, and but for an error of judgment by Everett in the last inning the visitors would have been whitewashed. After two were out, Everett ran in front of Dahlen and fumbled a hit that would have undoubtedly retired the side had he let it alone. Two singles, another error and Garzell's triple followed the misplay.

A DOG FIGHT FRACAS.

Three Men and Two Dogs Were Arrested.

Quite a lively dog fight occurred on the Suffolk canal bank, near the Jefferson street bridge, about 9.30 o'clock this morning, which resulted in the arrest of the interested parties.

Officer Galvin was passing along Suffolk street and his attention was attracted by a crowd of people running towards Jefferson street.

Going there he found John J. Smith, a well known man in police circles, Paul Roy and John Rowland on the canal bank fighting two bull dogs, a brindle and a white. One of the dogs had fallen into the water and Smith pulled him out, renewing hostilities.

The officer told them to separate the dogs, but they didn't, and he went away and notified Officer Hessian and Tilton who returned with him to the scene of the fight.

The men started away, but the three named were caught. Smith started away with one of the dogs, but was caught. On the way to the police station, the dogs got mixed again and it took the officers a few minutes to separate them.

The white bull which received a bad chewing was taken to the police station. It is supposed to be owned by Smith while Rowland owns the other.

On Sunday afternoon there will be a grand sacred concert by the National band to which all are invited.

STRICT NEUTRALITY

Has Been the Administration's Stand In Troubles Between Foreign Nations.

WASHINGTON, May 10.—The state department has just published an appendix to the volume of foreign relations of 1894, comprising a history of the Chinese-Japanese war; the correspondence relative to the enforcement of regulations respecting fur seals; affairs at Bluefields and the Mosquito territory; the old Mora claim; reciprocity correspondence with Colombia, Hayti and Venezuela, and correspondence concerning affairs in Samoa.

With the exception of the first named, all of these subjects have been fully treated in documents supplied to congress in answer to resolutions during the last session. The connection of the United States with the troubles of China and Japan first appears in a dispatch dated June 22, 1894, from Mr. Uhl, acting secretary of the state department, to the United States minister, Mr. Sill, at Seoul, in which directions are given to the American representative to Corea to use every possible effort for the preservation of peaceful conditions. There follows a long statement of the action taken by the Corean government, of the appeals to the United States for assistance, of the strict policy of neutrality adopted by the Americans.

The Cleveland administration, however, tried their customary diplomatic channels to prevent hostilities, but was not successful. China was willing to allow the United States to decide the grounds upon which peace should be arranged, but Japan, triumphant and successful, declined.

Insurance Companies Swindled.

PHILADELPHIA, May 10.—A gigantic scheme for the wholesale defrauding of accident insurance companies by means of bogus claims has been unearthed. Nearly every accident insurance company in the United States is involved, and the amount secured will run into the thousands. Operations of a Dr. Soupcoff in Pittsburg became suspicious, and he was watched. An agent investigated, and it is said that Soupcoff has confessed that his claims were fraudulent, and implicated two physicians and four other persons in this city.

Crisis Near at Hand.

PROVIDENCE, May 10.—The report that the Saxon mill was to break loose from the combination of manufacturers here and offer its operatives an increase in wages is pronounced to be without foundation by the treasurer of the company. It is stated that every mill in Olneyville will shut down on Saturday night for an indefinite period unless the operatives vote to return to work at once. It is the only thing that will save them from a summer of idleness.

Starts With Seventy Members.

BEVERLY, May 10. — State Councillor Benjamin F. Joy, assisted by the board of Supreme Council officers, instituted a council of the "Order of United American Mechanics" here last night. The charter list contains 70 names. Degree teams from Samuel Tucker council, Marblehead; High Rock council, Lynn, and Golden Star council, Beverly, performed the degree work.

Fifty New Mystic Shriners.

BRIDGEPORT, May 10.—The Nobles of the Mystic Shrine were in session here last night, members from all over New England being in attendance. Fifty candidates were initiated, among them being Senator Marigold, ex-Speaker Paige and Senator Lee.

Time to Think It Over.

ST. JOHN'S, N. F., May 10.—The legislature yesterday adjourned for a week. No reply had been received from the Canadian government regarding confederation, and, therefore, the Newfoundland delegates were not ready to present the final terms.

Strike About Over.

MANCHESTER, N. H., May 10.—Unless something unexpected happens, the strike at the shoeshop of Crafts & Green will be of short duration. About 150 hands are working, and many more operatives are willing to go in as soon as stock is ready.

BIG CONVENTION

Of the Y. M. C. A. at Springfield.

MANY PRACTICAL TOPICS DISCUSSED AT LENGTH

With a View of Helping Young Men.

SPRINGFIELD, May 10.—The second day of the international Y. M. C. A. convention opened with an attendance of over 500 delegates. The first topic of discussion was, "Points of Danger in the Development of State and Provincial Work." Dr. Warner and T. J. Gillespie held that the danger lay in one branch being neglected for the other, and too much secular work.

E. A. Sinclair read a paper giving a history of the growth of the order. President Gates of Amherst college spoke upon "Opportunity, Obligation, Possibility."

Yesterday afternoon's session was divided into three sections—the spiritual work, the educational work and the physical work. Papers were read at all of these sessions, after which there was a general discussion of the subjects.

The meeting in the interests of the spiritual work was held in the State Street Baptist church. F. S. Goodman of New York presided and spoke briefly on "The Real Supremacy of the Spiritual Work." The spiritual work, he said, was the basis of the Y. M. C. A. and was the real reason for its existence. It furnishes the only adequate motive for the association, and it also serves as an inspiration for carrying the work on.

The next speaker was J. F. Robinson of Pittsburg, and he confined himself to the subject, "How can this supremacy get its best expressions in all departments of the work?" He said that the spiritual should dominate in association work. The supremacy of the spiritual should have great weight in the selection of the physical direction and the teachers for the educational work.

Educational Needs.

The educational session was perhaps of the greatest interest to the large share of the delegates. The first speaker was S. H. Berry of Brooklyn, who confined himself to the library and reading rooms of associations. He made very valuable suggestions as to the class and kind of books which should compose the library, and also spoke of the way these rooms should be conducted.

H. A. Ames of Montreal spoke on "Library Societies and Practical Talks." He said: "In dealing with this subject let us divide it by considering as literary societies those gatherings in which a number take part; and as practical talks, the informal lecture delivered by other than association members. Now as to the first: Great is the work which has been done in times past by the debating society. Many of America's statesmen look back to the lyceum platform as the starting point for all subsequent success. With the ordinary literary society, oration, essay, debate, general discussion, decision and critique all find place in the program. Herein, then, the old-time association literary society lies midway between the social and educational work."

The speaker here spoke of some of the faults of the societies, saying that there was a tendency toward too much diversity in the choice of subjects; that there was a lack of practicability in the topics and often a lack of earnestness of purpose. In conclusion, Mr. Ames dwelt briefly on the latter part of his subject in regard to practical talks.

The third speaker at this meeting was W. H. Coughlin of Brooklyn, who spoke in favor of art, sketching and music clubs as features of educational work in the Y. M. C. A., and he was followed by L. W. Messer of Chicago, who spoke on "The Educational Director, His Qualifications and Duties."

Athletics Favored.

A great deal of interest centered in the physical work department. Although the question of forming a Y. M. C. A. athletic league has been agitated among the association leaders, it has never been brought into the international convention before. The matter was presented by J. F. Southerland of Joliet, Ills. He advised the formation of a league to be governed by the international committee, which should include as active members all the Y. M. C. A.'s in North America and as associate members any athletic organization connected with any philanthropic, educational or religious institution of the country. The scheme was thought favorably of, and it was voted to recommend it to the general convention for adoption.

At the evening session a letter was read from John J. McCook of New York. "The splendid work of the railroad department," he wrote, "wherever it has had a fair chance to show its scope, capacity and results, has more than demonstrated the great advantages it provides for the men; what real comfort and enjoyment it brings to them; how it protects them from extravagance, temptation and sin; how it makes them better husbands and fathers; how it strengthens and elevates their characters and lives; how it has been to many, humanely speaking, the means of saving their souls." Mr. McCook wrote how the managers of the railroads were beginning more and more to see the good the association is doing.

J. M. Burwick of Worthington, Ind., a freight conductor, told what the association had done for him and was doing for others on the road.

Rev. W. H. P. Faunce of New York closed the evening's program with a stirring address on "The Bible and Its Supreme Importance to Young Men."

Crooked Dealings Alleged.

CLEVELAND, May 10.—The Ohio-Colorado Mining and Milling company passed into the hands of a receiver yesterday. The company is capitalized at $1,600,000, in shares of $10 each. Charles A. Radcliffe charges that up to Aug. 3, 1893, 4033 shares of stock had been issued, and that the officers of the company issued to their friends, without consideration, 32,216 shares out of sympathy for losses sustained by those who held shares in the Magna Charta Silver Mining and Tunnel company.

Chicago Student the Leader.

CAMBRIDGE, May 10.—The annual competitive elocution contest of Harvard college was held last night. The first prize was won by Harold E. Addison, class of '96, of Chicago, whose subject was "The Soldier's Field." R. W. Stimpson, '95, of Palmer, for "A Plea for General Smalls;" W. S. Youngman, '96, of Williamsport, Pa., for "The Minute Man of '76," and L. P. Hildreth of Salem, '96, for "Gallico," took prizes.

THE BAY STATE LEGISLATURE

THE TUBERCULOSIS BILL ENGROSSED BY HOUSE.

Discussion on the Abolition of the Death Penalty—Woburn's Police Bill.

BOSTON, May 10.—The tuberculosis bill was engrossed in the house, in concurrence with the senate. It provides for full sound compensation for slaughtered tuberculous cattle, the use of tuberculin as a diagnostic agent only upon the written consent of the owners of the cattle, and allows an appropriation of $100,000 to carry on the work of the year. The house considered several amendments to the Boston city charter bill. Among the more important amendments adopted was one restoring the power of confirmation to the board of aldermen and one declaring the mayor eligible to re-election. The bill was ordered to a third reading. The senate engrossed the Woburn police commission bill and passed the bill to increase the efficiency of the militia. The debate on the bill to abolish the death penalty was begun in the house, and showed a strong sentiment in favor of abolishing the penalty. The vote was not taken at adjournment.

Battle to Be Further Continued.

WINNIPEG, May 10.—Upon the reassembling of the Manitoba legislature yesterday, Premier Greenway asked the house to order a further adjournment, until June 13, in order that further consideration of separate schools may be had. He said it was not the intention to proceed with other business until this matter was disposed of. The premier's motion to adjourn was productive of an animated debate, but the motion was finally carried, and the legislature was declared adjourned to June 13.

Important Bills Become Laws.

ALBANY, May 10.—The governor has signed the Gray racing bill, the two Wilde bills forbidding pool selling or gambling of any sort, and the supplemental bill fixing a tax of 5 per cent on the gross receipts of racing associations. The governor names as the commission to govern racing August Belmont, John S. Sanford and E. D. Morgan.

A Republican Majority.

WASHINGTON, May 10.—Delaware having been the last state in which a United States senator remained to be elected, the senate roster for the opening of the Fifty-fourth congress is now complete. Omitting the second Delaware senatorship, the senate politically will be composed as follows: Republicans, 42; Democrats, 39; Populists, 6.

Aged Veteran Commits Suicide.

NEWMARKET, N. H., May 10.—Jere Young, aged 60 years, committed suicide yesterday by shooting himself. Temporary insanity is supposed to have led to the deed. Mr. Young was a Grand Army veteran and participated in the Kearsarge-Alabama fight.

Four Thousand Employes Benefited.

PITTSBURG, May 10.—The National Tube works of McKeesport have granted their 4000 employes an increase of 10 per cent in wages. Employes of iron and steel mills, generally, believe that the action of the National works will be followed by other manufacturers.

Defeated by One Vote.

ALBANY, May 10.—The "Greater New York" bill, providing for the consolidation of New York, Brooklyn and adjacent towns, was defeated in the senate by a vote of 15 to 14. The bill may be called up for reconsideration.

Hot Weather Helped Death.

BOSTON, May 10.—An unknown woman, about 70 years of age, staggered into a drug store on Green street last night and dropped dead. Heart disease and exhaustion from the heat are supposed to have been the causes.

"Special arrangements can now be made at the Traders' National Bank for depositing valuable articles for safe keeping during your absence from the city this summer. Only a nominal charge is made for this service."

Bank open 8 a. m., to 4 p. m., Saturday 8 a. m., to 1 p. m., 7 to 9 p. m. 30 Middlesex street.

REAL ESTATE is selling at a loss nowadays.

FREE TRANSFERS are wanted in Boston. The West End company will kick hard before granting them.

A NICE cool ride to the suburbs for a nickel will be appreciated all the more in the very hot weather.

HOW REFRESHING these hot days to have good water to drink instead of the germ-charged stuff we had before taking our supply from the driven wells.

IT IS shown by statistics that 300,000 people have been benefited by a recent increase in wages in the Eastern states. That indicates an upward tendency.

EVEN A policeman is not justified in firing at a lost prisoner in a crowd. Moral: Hold your man when you've got him. Officer Guard of Boston will be more guarded in future.

O'DONOVAN ROSSA got a cool reception in the house of commons, probably because the members thought he had with him some of the explosive stuff that makes things hot in a very short time.

IS THE person who puts a nickel in a slot machine that does not does not work, justified in breaking the machine to recover the money? After considering justice alone, one would naturally say yes.

THE REPUBLICANS have gerrymandered things in Portsmouth and now the favored police force has threatened to arrest the other. The methods adopted to win the victory were most flagrantly outrageous.

OUR SINCERE congratulations to the town of Chelmsford on the dedication of its commodious library. The gift should endure for ages and if properly conducted confer untold benefits upon the little town.

THAT the income tax is only a corpse is the way Lawyer Joseph Choate characterizes this mode of raising revenue. The Supreme court will see what life is in it and report the findings a week from next Monday.

SIR ROBERT PEEL is dead, Lord Rosebery looks weary, Gladstone is not well and Her Majesty, the Queen, is not expected to reign much longer. These things will not bring overwhelming sorrow to the Prince of Wales.

THE LAWRENCE common council has condemned the license commission for excluding convicted bartenders from the business. The matter is bound to end in a great big suit for damages and perhaps also in the removal of some of the commissioners.

THE A. P. A. national council in session at Milwaukee is making some great claims. The 2,500,000 membership is a myth. The threat to elect the next president is mere humbug. The organization is one that no party can afford to espouse. Acting upon its own responsibility it will have no more chance of success than has the prohibition party.

GROVER CLEVELAND has placed himself on the side of decent journalism by refusing to extend executive clemency to an editor sentenced to three months for outrageous libel. The president in his refusal said: "The crime is a most detestable one. It has become so common, and is so seldom punished, that I cannot reconcile executive clemency in the case here presented, with the duty I owe to decent journalism, the peace of society and the protection of those constantly subjected to libellous attacks." Every decent citizen in the country will say amen to every word of this. Neither high nor low are free from the filth of the slimy sheets that are a disgrace to this age of enlightenment.

A GOOD BILL TO KILL.

The Massachusetts senate has approved many unjust laws but it deserves credit for killing the bill prohibiting the granting of a liquor license within a quarter of a mile of a no license town. There never was such an asinine measure for it can be seen that logically if the prohibiting town can impose its principles upon any portion of a neighboring town it has an equal right to impose them upon the whole town which would make the entire state and nation prohibitory. The ignoramus who proposed such a law should betake himself to the woods whence he emerged at the call of some fanatical constituency. The majority that passed the measure in the house is no better than he. They are all swayed by prejudice and fanaticism.

NOBODY CAN blame President Sullivan if he refuses to relinquish his claim to the presidency of the common council, since the republicans say he gained that title by fraud and make his retirement the first condition to their doing business. Should he retire, the republicans would parade the fact as evidence of their righteousness and his own and his party's perfidy.

LAYING FOR A BARGAIN.

He Wanted a Cloak; but, Alas, He Came Too Late.

"Look a-here," he began as he entered a Woodward avenue dry goods store Saturday forenoon with a bargainish look on his face, "you had some winnin's cloaks here last October fur $15."

"Yes, we did," replied the floorwalker.

"My ole woman wanted one, but I told her to hold on. About the fust of December thom same cloaks was only $12."

"Yes; marked down to $12."

"My ole woman wanted to buy then, but I told her to hold on. About the fust o' January them cloaks went down to $9, didn't they?"

"Yes. We marked them down again."

"My ole woman couldn't hardly stand still, but I told her to wait, and they'd be lower. About two weeks ago I saw 'em in the windor marked down to $7."

"Yes. We were willing to sacrifice rather than carry them over."

"I had to git a rope around the ole woman to hold her, but I knowed what I was about. Hero's your $5."

"What for?"

"Fur a cloak with a 36 bust, black cloth, horn buttons, two puckets. You've marked 'em down to $5, of course, rather than carry 'em over. I hain't as smart as some, but when I kin save a straight $10 bill I'm right thar."

"My dear sir," softly replied the floorwalker as he returned the bill, "I'm sorry to inform you that"—

"That what?"

"That we haven't a single cloak left!"

The old man looked at him, turned white and red and swallowed a lump in his throat, and all he said as he went out was:

"Waal, by thunder!"—Detroit Free Press.

Fin De Siecle Love Songs.

BY A GEOMETRICIAN.

I love the oval of your face,
The arcs above your eyes,
The circles which your soul looks through
With tenderest surprise.

I love the angles of your mouth,
Your cheeks' convexities,
The whole sweet sphere of that fair head,
So far from plane it is.

Like a right angle I shall kneel
And ask you to be mine,
And round one finger then describe
A golden circle fine.

BY A CHEMIST.

The sweet alembics of your eyes
Distill most precious tears,
And in the crucible of your mouth
What hopes, what joys, what fears,
Transmuted are to golden words,
To which my heart coheres!

Oh, be not too precipitate
Nor nead to the touch.
Decant your love so carefully,
If you have any such,
That when my soul dissolves in it
'Twill not react too much.

BY A DOCTOR.

Give me your hand, and let me feel your pulse
And learn how fares your cardiac apparatus,
Whether it starts and beats uncertainly
While Cupid aims his keen swift arrow at us.

Grant me one fever—it is all I ask—
Take me to be your knight as well as doctor
For you, of what fine potions, powders, pills
Could I forever be the proud concoctor!

Oh, sweet compendium of anatomy,
How beautiful your eyelids' modest ptosis!
For, lo, you love; I feel it in your pulse.
I'd stake my life upon my diagnosis!
—Frederick Peterson in Life.

"What I like about your boss," remarked the caller who was waiting to see the head of the firm, "is that you always know where to find him. And he calls a spade a spade."

Would Bear Watching.

"Kitty, what brings that young chucklehead of a Spoonamore to this house so often?"

"Why, Uncle Allen, he comes to see me, I suppose."

"What do you know about him?"

"I know he's a very pleasant, agreeable young man, who belongs to a good family, always dresses well, is in good circumstances and is well educated and well read."

"What else do you know about him?"

"I know he hasn't any of the habits many young men have. He doesn't drink, smoke, gamble, attend prize fights, or go into bad company."

"Does he keep a race horse?"

"Oh, no! I am sure he doesn't."

"Part his hair in the middle?"

"No."

"Let his little finger nails grow extremely long?"

"No."

"Quote Ibsen?"

"Never."

"Chew gum?"

"Oh, no!"

"Wear pointed whiskers?"

"He does not."

"Carry chocolate creams and caramels in his pocket?"

"No."

(Still suspicious)—"He may be all right, Kitty, but you'd better watch him. I'll bet $4 he calls his father 'papa.'"—Chicago Tribune.

He Was a Hard Loser.

"That fellow Jones is the closest poker player I ever saw in my life," remarked a well known cigar dealer after an all night sitting at the great American game.

"Does play a hard game," was the conservative opinion of the gentleman addressed.

"I don't mean that. I don't object to a man playing the best he knows how, but I don't like to see a man fall in love with his money."

"I've noticed that he would never lend money in a game."

"Yes. If he's losing, he always says: 'I can't do it. I'm too much loser,' and if he's winning he says: 'No, sir. It always knocks down my luck.'"

"That's figuring it down pretty close, isn't it?"

"Close! That's no name for him. Why, last night we had played five hours, and he was $1.75 loser. My cigar went out, and I asked him for a light from his. He shook his head and said:

"'Uh! Uh! Can't do it. I'm too much loser.'"—San Francisco Post.

Driven to Drink.

Food Crank Doctor—Bread is the staff of life? Nonsense. If you eat it when it is fresh, you will die of indigestion. If you eat it when it is stale, you will die of disease germs that have lodged in it. In short, there is nothing so fatal to life as bread.

Patient—Then you advise me to eat something else?

Food Crank Doctor—My dear fellow, science has little to offer you in the way of advice. Everything else is as deleterious as bread, and of course to eat nothing at all will result in death by starvation.

Patient—Great Scott! I guess the only thing for me to do is to take to drink.—New York Tribune.

HOW TO HAVE LITTLE FEET

THE FOOT OF A LITTLE CHILD IS PERFECT.

It Can be Trained to be a Boon Companion to its Owner—How to Clean Burnished Steel—How to Dry Deep Wells—How to Preserve Cut Flowers.

Speaking generally, the foot of a little child is absolutely perfect in shape and proportions. Although we realize that the classic model is no recognized standard of beauty, it is possible to preserve the natural contour of the foot and still render it lovely to modern eyes.

Too much attention cannot well be given to the footwear of young girls, since much of the comfort of their after life depends upon the care which they receive during their early years. Ready made shoes should be avoided, for in the majority of cases they are constructed upon lines diametrically opposed to nature's plan, while individual peculiarities can of course receive no consideration whatever. The sole of the ancient sandal may be taken as a model of the required shape, since it follows all the graceful curves of the foot and allows free play of all the muscles.

The danger attending the use of ill fitting shoes, as well for grown persons as for children, cannot be overestimated. If the foot is naturally large, it is the most arrant folly to attempt to reduce its size, since compression is inevitably followed by more or less serious deformity, while not infrequently it is attended by disease. Shoes that are sharply pointed at the toe should be avoided by wide footed women, for not only is the result—viewed from whatever standpoint—undeniably ugly, but the shoe will always spread or split after it has been worn a few times. High heels, too, tend to permanently widen the ball of the foot, owing to the full weight of the body being thrown forward, while they are a fruitful source of enlarged toe joints and ingrowing nails, to say nothing of greater and lesser evils.

It is scarcely necessary to say that no large or irremediably ill shaped foot should be incased in a colored or otherwise showy boot. In this case black should be adopted upon all occasions, and always in the softest and most pliable of fabrics. Aggressive decoration in any form will invariably attract attention to the size or deformity of the foot and should therefore be avoided.

How to Clean Burnished Steel.

Burnished steel on stoves and about the open grates will require attention at this time, and it is often mistaken for nickel plate. There is comparatively little nickel plate used on the part of the stove where great heat comes, since it has a tendency to scale off when exposed to a high temperature. A stove manufacturer claims that there is nothing so good for cleaning burnished steel as naphtha, but it must be used with the utmost care. There must be no fire in the stove when it is used, and the work must be done by daylight. If the steel about the open grate or stove becomes tarnished or soiled, see that it is cold, with no spark of fire in the room. Wet a soft cloth with naphtha and rub the steel briskly until a high polish is secured, then rub with a dry cloth.

How to Dry Damp Walls.

Sylvester's process consists in using two washes or solutions for covering the surface of the walls, one composed of castile soap and water and one of alum and water. The proportions are three-quarters of a pound of soap to a gallon of water and one-half pound of alum to 4 gallons of water, both substances to be quite dissolved in water before being used. The walls should be quite clean and dry, and the temperature of the air not above 50 degrees F., when the compositions are applied. The first, or soap, wash should be laid on when boiling hot, with a flat brush, taking care not to form a froth on the brickwork. This wash should remain 24 hours, so as to dry and harden before the second, or alum, wash is applied, which should be done in the same manner as the first. The temperature of this wash when applied may be from 60 to 70 degrees F., and this also should remain 24 hours before a second coat of soap wash is put on. These coats are to be applied alternately until the walls are made impervious to water. The alum and soap thus combined form an insoluble compound, filling the pores of the masonry and entirely preventing the water from entering the wall.

How to Make Ice Cream Eggs.

Take large eggs and empty the shells by making a hole at each end. Fill the shells with ice cream soft and just freshly frozen. Then procure some rubber bands from the stationer's, about half an inch in breadth, and draw the bands over the eggs so as to close the holes. Brush over with melted butter besides to close all crevices against the salt, and then drop them in the freezing tub and cover with finely pounded ice and salt. When the cream is frozen, peel off the eggshells and serve.

How Wines Should Be Served.

The only thing that is served at the right hand at dinner is the wine, and the order of serving is hock or chablis with the oysters, sherry with the soup and fish, champagne with the first entrees, up to the end of the dinner. It is not usual to have two sorts of champagne—dry and sweet. The servant would then ask each guest for the preference. The glasses should be replenished with every course, or at least the servant should offer to replenish, and it is easy for the guest to refuse if so desired. Liqueurs are served with the ices or immediately before the dessert. With the dessert, sherry, claret of good quality and sometimes port is served. Port is best with the nuts and raisins. After filling the glasses, the servants usually leave the dining room, and the gentlemen attend to the ladies' requirements during dessert.

How to Preserve Cut Flowers.

Lovers of flowers not rich enough to buy often will find that the lives of their favorites can be prolonged by covering them over night with glass. Violets will remain fresh if the water is renewed often and a tumbler be placed over them at night.

He'll sail the ocean blue. Who? The most popular gentleman in Lowell.

THE ORIGIN OF A CUSTOM.

How the First American Girl Came to Marry a Foreigner.

The mighty chief Powhatan sat on his tanbark throne and waited for the procession to appear. It was to be a long procession, for its leading feature was Captain John Smith of England, and Powhatan proposed in his noble, aboriginal mind to make the time of his passing a given point extremely indefinite, not to say permanent. In the words of a later historian, "Powhatan was layin for John with a club." True, he was not in concealment, ready to spring upon the unsuspecting captain and sandbag him, so to speak, for the captain more than suspected that he was persona non grata to the mighty chief and was aware that at the hour appointed he was to be brought before Powhatan, and then and there, at a given signal, to lay his head upon a stump in order to facilitate the chief's purpose in getting rid of him with promptness and dispatch.

Presently the enlivening notes of the James River Falls brass band were heard in the distance, and the old chief's face, before frowning at the uncalled for delay, broke into a seraphic smile, and he toyed with his club merrily.

"What air plays the band?" inquired the chief of his private secretary.

"I believe, sire, it is called 'Goodby, John.'"

"How much better," sighed Powhatan, "than 'Johnnie Get Your Gun,' or some other of those seditious and insurrectionary tunes the band was accustomed to play before we scalped the leader!"

Powhatan smiled grimly, and the private secretary bowed with grave deference.

The music of the band sounded nearer, and the shouts of the Algonquin Light infantry were wafted in on the soft Virginia air. A few more moments of impatient waiting, and the procession filed down before the tanbark throne.

Powhatan stood up in all his fuss and feathers, and he looked like an October sunset with fringe on it.

Captain Smith had halted directly in front of the chief, and he gazed defiantly at the vermilion landscape before him.

"Good morning, John," said Powhatan in the hospitable tones of the old Virginian.

"How are you, Black-and-tan—excuse me — Powhatan," responded Captain Smith, with the bluff cordiality of the Englishman.

The chief's face reddened, but it didn't show through.

"Thanks," he said. "I'm ready for business."

"Reddy is good," smiled Captain Smith, noting Powhatan's war paint, but Powhatan was not a subscriber to Punch, and this witty sally of the Englishman fell unheeded.

"I presume," he continued as he balanced his cordwood stick in his hand with graceful ease, "that you know what you are here for?"

"I fancy," replied the captain with charming naivete and bonhomie, "that I am to take the stump and join your campaign club."

"You guessed it the first time," smiled the chief. "But a truce to such airy fairy persiflage," he added. "Take your place."

Captain Smith was conducted to the stump at the foot of the throne, and Powhatan jauntily stepped to his side, twirling his club as the policemen do on pleasant summer afternoons as they stroll along.

"This pillow," laughed the captain as he placed his head on the stump in several positions in order to find a comfortable one, "reminds me of the pillow I had in the Pullman coming up here."

"It's soft enough for my purpose," growled Powhatan, for the first time showing his anxiety to get his work in.

The chief braced himself, sighted along his club to get the proper distance, the band played "Annie Laurie," and he drew back his formidable weapon.

A silence, broken only by the mournful music of the band, fell upon the scene, but it was for an instant only, then a wild cry pierced the stillness, accompanied by a swish of petticoats, and a fair girl stood between the captain and the club.

"Oh, popper," cried Pocahontas, for it was she, the chief's beautiful daughter. "Oh, popper, what are you going to do?"

"Back, girl," he shouted: "back I say, or you'll get it in the neck, sure."

"Nay, nay, popper," she pleaded in sweet, cajoling tones, "I shall not back. You know not what you are about to do."

"Stand from under for a minute, and you will see if I don't," the chief answered sullenly as he let his club fall by his side.

"But I tell you," she insisted, "that you don't."

"Why don't I?"

"Because you don't."

"Because me no becauses, girl," thundered Powhatan, reaching for his club.

"Have you no other reason than a woman's reason?"

"Being a woman," she replied haughtily, "I don't have to have."

"Now, Pokie," said Powhatan caressingly, "you get out of this and give your papa a chance."

"No, popper," she responded as she threw her plump and tawny arm around the neck of the captive captain, "I came here to give Captain Smith a chance and to give every American girl, for all time to come, a chance," she added in almost tragic tones.

"Come off," he growled.

"No, popper," she persisted, "Mr. Smith must come off—off of that stump. Will it be necessary for me to give you a map and a diagram before you will understand that Captain Smith is a foreigner, that I am an American girl of marriageable age and that the entente cordiale between the two must and shall be preserved? Don't you know that you owe something to posterity and the future social conditions of this great and glorious republic? Popper, popper," she pleaded, "can't you see that your Pocahontas is endeavoring to establish a precedent that will stand for all time?"

Powhatan hesitated. A light as of a new day was breaking in upon his aboriginal perception.

"Old man," exclaimed Captain Smith, taking the stump with his feet instead of his head, "Pocahontas has called you, and you've got to show down." Powhatan dropped his gory club in supreme disgust.

"Tell that confounded band to play 'Tommy Atkins,'" he commanded his private secretary.

"I guess I'll take you," said Pocahontas to the captain as he came down off the stump.

"Please guess again," said John.

But despite this ungallant and ungenerous rebuff history records the fact that Pocahontas was the first American girl to marry a foreigner.—W. J. Lampton in Life.

ELLINGWOODS' NEW STORE

IT IS BY FAR THE FINEST IN THE CITY.

Flocks Crowding to the Opening—Soda and Souvenirs Being Given Away.

If you are down town this afternoon or tomorrow or on your first opportunity, don't do a thing until you have seen Ellingwood's remodeled store at the old corner. After working hard all night long the hustling Ed., and his hustling clerks assumed their Sunday looks and opened up their magnificent store which undoubtedly is far ahead of anything of its kind in the city. To describe the fixtures and furnishings would take a column, and then the idea of the attractiveness of the store would be unsatisfactory. But let the store be seen and it will be admired.

"Did you see Ellingwood's new place?" was the question of the morning and hundreds of people flocked in and out of the store all morning while the clerks and the proprietor himself worked like beavers serving soda from the new fountain which has an inviting aspect that is irresistible. Soda had the call in the morning while the regular business was very brisk. Of course many went in through curiosity alone and these were just as welcome as anybody. On the soda counter were two immense jars containing pinks and roses and these were distributed to the public as souvenirs of the opening.

THE DAILY IN TROUBLE.

Americans Like Major Calhoun not Patriotic Enough.

The Lawrence Sun has the following in regard to the propriety of the new daily Boston paper which was launched with such a flourish of trumpets:

"Trouble has already broken out in the office of the Boston A. P. A. daily. The paper isn't getting a superabundance of advertising and this, together with other causes, has no doubt served to bring about the upheaval. Major Calhoun has "resigned" and gone south. Although a veteran of the war, his principles, it is said, were not "American" enough to suit certain "patriotic" readers of the sheet. Other changes have also taken place on the editorial staff, some of them it is stated, of a radical nature. Some of the employes wink their eye and significantly remark: 'we're saying nothing.'"

A libel suit for $25,000 is pending against the same paper and may test its vitality still more.

The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Marion Jones, as bridesmaid, and Mr. John A. Lamberton was best man. Mr. and Mrs. Charles will reside at 78 Bridge street.

COMMON COUNCIL

To Meet Again For Business Tonight.

MAYOR COURTNEY THREATENS MANDAMUS PROCEEDINGS.

Republicans Makes an Unreasonable Demand.

Tonight the republican councilmen will be given another opportunity to meet and transact the city's business.

It is not expected, however, that they will present themselves at city hall. The notices for the meeting were sent out yesterday afternoon, so that the members were notified in time.

It will not be at all surprising if Webster is out of town. At any rate no one expects that a meeting will be held. The democrats will be on hand as usual.

This morning Mayor Courtney said he had not yet decided to ask for a writ of mandamus to compel the republicans to go into meeting. He had thought the matter over however, and some time during the day, he and City Solicitor Hogan will discuss the question and come to some decision.

The republicans seem to insist that the democrats should depose President Sullivan or admit that his election was fraudulent.

Now, this is an unreasonable proposition, inasmuch as no councilman who testified honestly regarding Mr. Sullivan's election can now admit that the election was fraudulent. To do so would be to stultify himself and admit to be true what they know to be false.

On the other hand the republicans would lose nothing by recognizing Councilman Sullivan as the de facto president.

AGAIN WE'VE WON

The Fitchburg Ball Team Badly Beaten.

THE MOST EXCITING GAME YET PLAYED.

Manager Thyne and Others Remembered by Friends.

And it came to pass that on one fair day in the month yclept May, there came unto this town a man whose fame had gone abroad even to the countries beyond Ayer Junction. And he did bring with him a collection of men of brain and brawn who twirled the festive sphere for the honor of a little town some where up there, where the people drink nothing but rain and where the newspapers number but two.

And a great crowd went out to see that man whose name was Larry and whose team was called after a girl with big feet named Trilby.

And this Larry with a bold, bad brazen front did put his Trilbies against an aggregation of ball players from the town wherein said Larry did once reside and behold when the victims had been led to the slaughter a struggle ensued, the like of which had never been seen for years on those old Fair grounds, and though they died hard and becomingly, nevertheless, the Trilbies died and there was weeping and wailing and swearing in the little town beyond Ayer Junction and all was in darkness and the brass band which was to have escorted the returning victors through the streets of that little town heard the sorrowful tidings and forthwith changed from "Lo, the Conquering Heros Come," to the Dead march in Saul. It was the Fitchburg Mail that first bulletined the unwelcome news that Svengali had lost his hypnotic power and could no longer lead his Trilbies on to victory.

It was a day of plays and if you were not there you missed a good sized portion of your life. Never was there more excitement, betting or fun, not even in the old Manchester days, and every one of the 2000 people present took a very active part in the excitement and fun, while the betting was participated in by quite a number.

And why wouldn't it be a game worth seeing?

Lowell and Fitchburg are the two strongest teams in the association; had the latter won both would be tied for first place.

With the Fitchburgs are Donovan, Slines, Roach, McGuane and Castles; the owner is Charlie Cosgrove of Lowell and last, but by no means least, the manager, the only and original, copyrighted, trademarked and inimitable manager Lawrentius Josephus Thyne of Lowell.

The crowd turned out loyally, and each of the Lowell players on the visiting team and McGuane's inability to play, owing to an injury, was regretted by all, and deplored by the visitors, who needed him at different times during the game.

It was a jolly crowd of rooters that came down from Fitchburg and after they had become accustomed to the ways of a city that breaks all records for prompt payment of salaries, they got right in the game and amused every one around them.

"Wait till you see our lucky seventh inning," they cried early in the game. We waited and saw one man get as far as second and no further but the luck came not.

Among the Fitchburg rooters was a smart bit of a man with a crushed strawberry mustache and hair to match who cracked jokes all the afternoon, jollied the reporters with the ability of a republican office seeker and said he'd be d—d if he went away from the grounds before the last man was out even if he lost his train and had to go home by way of Boston, which he did. His front name is Freddy.

Then among the visitors was a crowd from Lawrence, including Jerry O'Sullivan, who brought his voice with him and Mike Bradley.

The local cranks were there to a man and made lots of noise. John F. Murphy guyed little Freddy from Fitchburg until the latter asked something about fire escapes.

"Mugs" O'Connell called everyone on the Lowell team a "stiff" and applauded so vociferously for Fitchburg that he cracked his voice and had to have it bandaged. Jimmie Hayes, the barber, sprang a joke that sent Sternberg's mascot into convulsions and there was a general good time.

Remembered by Their Friends.

At the opening of the game Umpire Hunt called Manager Thyne to the plate and Reporter Sternberg, in behalf of his News office friends presented him with a floral horse shoe, and Larry responded briefly while the crowd yelled.

In the second inning Larry was again called to the plate and this time Manager Mahoney, in behalf of Larry's many friends presented him with a gold watch, chain and charm. Turning to the grand stand Larry said: "My friends, I am very thankful to you for having watched me so beautifully and I will never forget you while I have this token of your kindness. I hope to be on time to the second all during the season."

When Steve Castles came to bat, one of the conductors of the street railroad presented him with a big bouquet, the gift of his former fellow employes, while Jack Condon, representing the Mathews presented him with a gold headed umbrella.

Then the Lowell team presented Fitchburg with a defeat.

The Game as Played.

Umpire Hunt called play shortly after three o'clock, with Lowell at the bat. McCarthy started with a single. Tebeau fanned out. Flanagan hit rapidly and both men were advanced by Coyle's base on on balls after Johnson had fouled out to Slines. A passed ball which was blocked and not thrown to the pitcher's box let both in and Van Alstyne went out, Magee to Popkay. On the other side Hunt hit to Coyle, who fumbled and went to second on Johnson's error with Gillis' grounder. Stout hit a nice one which Van Alstyne intercepted nicely, but couldn't handle. Johnson got it and nailed Mr. Stout. Then that Lowell man Donovan, sent the ball way out to the track, and made a tour of the bases and Castles went out, Coyle to Flanagan. Score 3 to 2 in favor of Fitchburg.

In the second, Lowell batted out six runs, O'Connor went out, Castles Popkay and then Outcault got his base, Hines advanced him on a single McCarthy filled the bases with another. Tebeau's hit to Stout who fumbled let in a run, and Flanagan's three bagger sent in the other three. Then Johnson went to first on balls, and two more errors came in on Coyle's three bagger. Van Alstyne and O'Connor went out. Fitchburg didn't score again until the sixth.

Then for three innings neither side scored and the playing of both sides was superb Hines made a fine running catch in the fifth.

Lowell added one the sixth on McCarthy's three bagger and Flanagan's sacrifice hit.

Fitchburg's streak of luck came in the sixth for with the score 9 to 3 against them they made six runs and a tie. Popkay went out Van Alstyne to Flanagan, and Stout made a hit. Donovan the next batter knocked another home run way out in left field, O'Connor muffed Castles fly and a base on balls by Slines advanced him. Both scored on Roach's three base hit. Lawson made a single and stole second. Hart hit to Johnson who threw to Tebeau but the latter let it go through him and Lawson scored, making the sixth run. The next two men went out.

Fitchburg's lucky seventh came next but they were all through for the day and didn't score after the sixth.

Then Flanagan's Pets won the game by making three runs in the seventh and then they were all through scoring. There were two men out and the Fitchburg crowd was sure that their team was going to win when O'Connor hit to Popkay who let the ball go through him. Outcault hit to Stout who did the same thing and the doctor went to third. Hines made a hit and this followed by singles by McCarthy and Tebeau let in the three runs which won the game.

A perusal of the score will show that the game was unusually close in all respects, though Lowell hits were more timely and their errors less untimely.

The Game Elsewhere.

CHICAGO, May 9.—Such a poor exhibition of fielding as the Bostons showed has seldom been seen here. The Colts outplayed them at every point, and but for an error of judgment by Everett in the last inning the visitors would have been whitewashed. After two were out, Everett ran in front of Dahlen and fumbled a hit that would have undoubtedly retired the side had he let it alone. Two singles, another error and Ganzell's triple followed the misplay.

Notes.

If there is a better all-around player than McCarthy we would like to see him.

Those Lowell boys in the Fitchburg team can put up an elegant game.

Jim Cudworth, another Lowell manager, and his Haverhill Pets are here today.

A DOG FIGHT FRACAS.

Three Men and Two Dogs Were Arrested.

Quite a lively dog fight occurred on the Suffolk canal bank, near the Jefferson street bridge, about 9.30 o'clock this morning, which resulted in the arrest of the interested parties.

Officer Galvin was passing along Suffolk street and his attention was attracted by a crowd of people running towards Jefferson street.

Going there he found John J. Smith, a well known man in police circles, Paul Roy and John Rowland on the canal bank fighting two bull dogs, a brindle and a white. One of the dogs had fallen into the water and Smith pulled him out, renewing hostilities.

The officer told them to separate the dogs, but they didn't, and he went away and notified Officer Hessian and Tilton who returned with him to the scene of the fight.

The men started away, but the three named were caught. Smith started away with one of the dogs, but was caught. On the way to the police station, the dogs got mixed again and it took the officers a few minutes to separate them.

The white bull which received a bad chewing was taken to the police station. It is supposed to be owned by Smith while Rowland owns the other.

A MAN IN THE CANAL

HIS COAT AND HAT BROUGHT TO THE STATION.

Officers Despatched to Investigate the Affair—He Was Seen Floating Down the Canal.

Two boys came into the police station this afternoon and reported that they saw the body of a man floating down the Suffolk canal. They could only see the top of his head, as he was carried along by the current. They brought with them a hat and a coat which they said they found on the bank of the canal and which they claimed belonged to the man they had seen in the river.

Officers Goodwin and Donaldson were sent out to investigate the affair.

Up at the canal quite a crowd gathered and stories were afloat to the effect that a man had committed suicide by jumping into the canal. No one seemed to know who the man was.

A woman on the bridge saw the man sinking and saw him above water from the Jefferson street to the Market street bridge.

THE REPUBLICANS have gerrymandered things in Portsmouth and now the favored police force has threatened to arrest the other. The methods adopted to win the victory were most flagrantly outrageous.

THE A. P. A. national council in session at Milwaukee is making some great claims. The 2,500,000 membership is a myth. The threat to elect the next president is mere humbug. The organization is one that no party can afford to espouse. Acting upon its own responsibility it will have no more chance of success than has the prohibition party.

GROVER CLEVELAND has placed himself on the side of decent journalism by refusing to extend executive clemency to an editor sentenced to three months for outrageous libel. The president in his refusal said: "The crime is a most detestable one. It has become so common, and is so seldom punished, that I cannot reconcile executive clemency in the case here presented, with the duty I owe to decent journalism, the peace of society and the protection of those constantly subjected to libellous attacks." Every decent citizen in the country will say amen to every word of this. Neither high nor low are free from the filth of the slimy sheets that are a disgrace to this age of enlightenment.

A GOOD BILL TO KILL.

The Massachusetts senate has approved many unjust laws but it deserves credit for killing the bill prohibiting the granting of a liquor license within a quarter of a mile of a no license town. There never was such an asinine measure for it can be seen that logically if the prohibiting town can impose its principles upon any portion of a neighboring town it has an equal right to impose them upon the whole town which would make the entire state and nation prohibitory. The ignoramus who proposed such a law should betake himself to the woods whence he emerged at the call of some fanatical constituency. The majority that passed the measure in the house is no better than he. They are all swayed by prejudice and fanaticism.

NOBODY CAN blame President Sullivan if he refuses to relinquish his claim to the presidency of the common council, since the republicans say he gained that title by fraud and make his retirement the first condition to their doing business. Should he retire, the republicans would parade the fact as evidence of their righteousness and his own and his party's perfidy.

LAYING FOR A BARGAIN.

He Wanted a Cloak; but, Alas, He Came Too Late.

"Look-a-here," he began as he entered a Woodward avenue dry goods store Saturday forenoon with a bargainish look on his face, "you had some winin's cloaks here last October far $15."

"Yes, we did," replied the floorwalker.

"My ole woman wanted one, but I told her to hold on. About the fust of December them same cloaks was only $12."

"Yes; marked down to $12."

"My ole woman wanted to buy then, but I told her to hold on. About the fust o' January them cloaks went down to $9, didn't they?"

"Yes. We marked them down again."

"My ole woman couldn't hardly stand still, but I told her to wait, and they'd be lower. About two weeks ago I saw 'em in the winder marked down to $7."

"Yes. We were willing to sacrifice rather than carry them over."

"I had to git a rope around the ole woman to hold her, but I knowed what I was about. Here's your $5."

"What for?"

"For a cloak with a 36 bust, black cloth, horn buttons, two pockets. You've marked 'em down to $5, of course, rather than carry 'em over. I hain't as smart as some, but when I kin save a straight $10 bill I 'm right thar."

"My dear sir," softly replied the floorwalker as he returned the bill, "I'm sorry to inform you that"—

"That what?"

"That we haven't a single cloak left!"

The old man looked at him, turned white and red and swallowed a lump in his throat, and all he said as he went out was:

"Waal, by thunder!"—Detroit Free Press.

Fin De Siecle Love Songs.

BY A GEOMETRICIAN.

I love the oval of your face,
The arcs above your eyes,
The circles which your soul looks through
With tenderest surprise.

I love the angles of your mouth,
Your cheeks' convexities,
The whole sweet sphere of that fair head,
So far from plane it is.

Like a right angle I shall kneel
And ask you to be mine,
And round one finger then describe
A golden circle line.

BY A CHEMIST.

The sweet alembics of your eyes
Distill most precious tears,
And in the crucible of your mouth
What hopes, what joys, what fears,
Transmuted are to golden words,
To which my heart coheres!

Oh, be not too precipitate
Nor acid to the touch.
Decant your love so carefully,
If you have any such,
That when my soul dissolves in it
'Twill not react too much.

BY A DOCTOR.

Give me your hand, and let me feel your pulse
And learn how fares your cardiac apparatus,
Whether it starts and beats uncertainly
While Cupid aims his keen swift arrow at us.

Grant me one fever—it is all I ask—
Take me to be your knight as well as doctor
For you, of what fine potions, powders, pills
Could I forever be the proud concoctor!

Oh, sweet compendium of anatomy,
How beautiful your eyelids' modest ptosis!
For, lo, you love; I feel it in your pulse.
I'd stake my life upon my diagnosis!

SUNBEAMS.

Would Bear Watching.

"Kitty, what brings that young chucklehead of a Spoonamore to this house so often?"

"Why, Uncle Allen, he comes to see me, I suppose."

"What do you know about him?"

"I know he's a very pleasant, agreeable young man, who belongs to a good family, always dresses well, is in good circumstances and is well educated and well read."

"What else do you know about him?"

"I know he hasn't any of the habits many young men have. He doesn't drink, smoke, gamble, attend prize fights, or go into bad company."

"Does he keep a race horse?"

"Oh, no! I am sure he doesn't."

"Part his hair in the middle?"

"No."

"Let his little finger nails grow extremely long?"

"No."

"Quote Ibsen?"

"Never."

"Chew gum?"

"Oh, no!"

"Wear pointed whiskers?"

"He does not."

"Carry chocolate creams and caramels in his pocket?"

"No."

(Still suspicious)—"He may be all right, Kitty, but you'd better watch him. I'll bet $4 he calls his father 'papa.'"—Chicago Tribune.

He Was a Hard Loser.

"That fellow Jones is the closest poker player I ever saw in my life," remarked a well known cigar dealer after an all night sitting at the great American game.

"Does play a hard game," was the conservative opinion of the gentleman addressed.

"I don't mean that. I don't object to a man playing the best he knows how, but I don't like to see a man fall in love with his money."

"I've noticed that he would never lend money in a game."

"Yes. If he's losing, he always says: 'I can't do it. I'm too much loser,' and if he's winning he says: 'No, sir. It always knocks down my luck.'"

"That's figuring it down pretty close, isn't it?"

"Close! That's no name for him. Why, last night we had played five hours, and he was $1.75 loser. My cigar went out, and I asked him for a light from his. He shook his head and said:

"'Uh! Uh! Can't do it. I'm too much loser.'"—San Francisco Post.

Driven to Drink.

Food Crank Doctor—Bread is the staff of life? Nonsense. If you eat it when it is fresh, you will die of indigestion. If you eat it when it is stale, you will die of disease germs that have lodged in it. In short, there is nothing so fatal to life as bread.

Patient—Then you advise me to eat something else?

Food Crank Doctor—My dear fellow, science has little to offer you in the way of advice. Everything else is as deleterious as bread, and of course to eat nothing at all will result in death by starvation.

Patient—Great Scott! I guess the only thing for me to do is to take to drink.—New York Tribune.

Tomorrow Afternoon Will Decide Who Gets the C. B. Coburn Property on Moody Street—It's Now or Never!

Administrator's sale of very valuable real estate on Moody street, at the corner of Tremont street, known as part of the C. B. Coburn property. Corner lot 45 by 75. Adjoining lot 42 by 75. Promptly at 5 o'clock, tomorrow afternoon, without limit or reserve of any kind whatsoever, and regardless of the weather, I shall sell by virtue of a license issued by the probate court for the county of Middlesex, the very attractive, the excellently situated and the unusually desirable real estate, for improvement, located as above. Lot 1. Corner of Moody and Tremont streets, 45 feet on Moody street, and 75 on Tremont street. Lot 2. Between Tremont and Tilden streets, adjoins lot 1, and has a frontage of 42 feet on Moody street. On the two lots at the present time are the storehouses, wagon sheds and stables used by C. B. Coburn & Co. The choice of the two lots will be offered by the square foot, the highest bidder will have the privilege of taking both lots if he so desires, but but he must decide immediately upon the first lot being struck off, otherwise the remaining lot will be offered without delay. The buildings will be sold to be removed or torn down and this sale will follow the sale of the land. Not for some years has so valuable and splendid a lot of land for improvement been offered in the market in this section of the city of Lowell, close to the city hall, accessible to business, capable of improvement at very little expense of getting it ready, near a business portion of Merrimack street, with bright prospects for Moody street. It can never be worth less and must in the natural course of events become extremely valuable. It should not be necessary in a city like Lowell, to more than simply announce a sale of this character to attract many buyers, real estate investors and speculators. Plans at office of auctioneers, J. E. Conant & Co.

A LIVELY ARBUTUS PARTY

BY LADIES AUXILIARY OF THE A. O. H.

Enjoyable Assembly in Associate Hall Last Evening—Concert and Ball.

Handsomely gowned young ladies and fine looking young men crowded Associate hall and participated in the rhythmic motions of the engaging waltz.

There must have been over 150 couples present and only an organization such as the Ladies' Auxiliary of Division 1, A. O. H., could conduct such a successful Arbutus party. There was no attempt made at decorating the hall, but the stage was set with potted plants and ferns, and the sides were entwined with arbutus.

Previous to the dancing an excellent concert program, including the following numbers was rendered: Overture, Manhattan orchestra; vocal solo, Daniel Donough; reading, selected; vocal solo, Mamie Bradley; Marshal Hogan and Hibernian Parade, children of St. Michael's school; vocal solo, Genie Burns; piano solo, Mr. McAloon; vocal solo, Mr. D. ADDICKS' THREAT

Appears to Have Been Made Good.

DELAWARE'S SENATORIAL ROW DOUBLY INVOLVED

Owing to the Adjournment of the Legislature.

DOVER, Del., May 10.—The general assembly of Delaware adjourned sine die at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon without choosing a successor to ex-United States Senator Anthony J. Higgins, although the Republicans claim that their leading candidate, Colonel Henry Dupont, was legally elected. The matter will probably be taken to the United States senate for a decision.

The 211th ballot since the deadlock began four months ago, and the last of the session, was taken a few minutes before 3 o'clock. It resulted: Henry A. Dupont (Rep.), 15; J. Edward Addicks (Rep.), 4; Edward Ridgely (Dem.), 9; F. W. Tunnell (Dem.), 1.

ANTHONY HIGGINS. J. EDWARD ADDICKS.

During the day the Democrats filibustered with the object of preventing the balloting, and when the death-knell of the executive session of 1895 was sounded, the clerk was in the midst of a roll-call on a dilatory motion made by a Democrat.

As soon as Governor Watson (Dem.), who, by reason of the fact that he was speaker of the senate previous to his elevation to the gubernatorial chair upon the death of Governor Marvil, presided over the joint session, announced the sine die adjournment, Speaker of the House McMullin (Rep.) arose and formally declared Henry A. Dupont elected United States senator. This action had previously been agreed upon by the Republican leaders.

The Delaware legislature is composed of 21 Republican representatives and 9 senators, 16 being a majority on joint ballot. The Republicans claim that when Senator Watson, by virtue of his position as speaker of the senate, succeeded to the governorship on the death of Governor Marvil a month ago, the number of senators was reduced to 18, and therefore there were only 28 on joint ballot, and that 15 votes constitute a majority.

Democrats' Contention.

On the other hand, the Democrats and Governor Watson distinctly declare that the "speaker of the senate" shall become governor. Therefore, if Mr. Watson withdraws from the senate, he ceases to be "speaker of the senate," and consequently loses the governorship.

The senatorial question is likely to occupy a large amount of public attention for months to come. Whether the governor has a right to appoint is a disputed question. If he has, the appointment will be only until the next legislature, which meets in January, 1895, unless called sooner by the governor. This latter contingency is not probable, however.

Addicks has made good his threat, uttered at the very beginning of the contest, to prevent the election of a Republican senator from Delaware if he could not secure the prize for himself. He has been aided in this by Senator Hanby, who from the first has conducted the Addicks canvass, and Representatives Ball, Moore and Robbins.

The deadlock practically began on the night of the caucus, Jan 14. Previous to the caucus, both the Higgins and Addicks factions had been making claims of an election on the ballot, but when the time for a caucus arrived the Addicks forces had retired. Higgins got three votes, Massey one, and there were two blanks.

Continuous Voting.

On Jan. 16 the first ballot for a United States senator was taken in joint session. Higgins received 10 of the 19 Republican votes; Addicks, 6, and Massey, 3. From that time until the close yesterday the legislature has been in session six days a week, it having been decided that at least one ballot must be taken each day until the deadlock was broken.

The feeling between the Higgins and Addicks factions increased as the balloting proceeded, the friends of the latter repeatedly declaring they would not desert their candidate, even if it caused a vacancy in the United States senate. The Higgins followers also stuck firmly to their favorite until within a few weeks past, when they began to show a disposition to agree upon some person acceptable to both factions, but their overtures in this direction were spurned by Addicks' friends.

Not until Tuesday did the Addicks force desert him, but four men returned to him yesterday. He has never polled less than four votes during the contest. During the past two weeks Addicks has been polling six votes, Representative Money deserting Higgins for the former. Almost from the time the balloting began, there were rumors of a break from the ranks of one or the other of the two candidates.

This is the third time there has been a vacancy in the United States senate from Delaware.

About Dupont.

Colonel Henry A. Dupont, who will make the contest for the senatorship, is a member of the famous Dupont family who have been manufacturers of powder and other explosives in Wilmington for over a century. He is a son of the late General Henry Dupont, and was born at Brandywine Banks in 1838. He attended the University of Pennsylvania, and was subsequently appointed to the United States Military academy at West Point, graduating in 1861. He entered the Fifth United States artillery and served through the civil war.

In 1874 he was married to Miss Pauline Foster of New York city. He is a member of the firm of F. I. Dupont, De Mours & Co., and is also president of the Wilmington and Northern Railroad company.

Colonel Dupont has been a Republican ever since the organization of the party. He was never an aspirant for office, but always took an active interest in local political affairs. In 1892 he was a candidate for presidential elector on the Republican ticket, but was defeated by Cleveland carrying the state at that election.

JAPAN'S POLICY

Shown in Peace Treaty Finally Agreed Upon.

NO CHANCE LEFT FOR UNFAIR ADVANTAGE

Should Enemy Seek the Fruits of Victory.

LONDON, May 10.—An official dispatch from Tokio states that the ratifications of the treaty of peace between Japan and China were exchanged at Che-Foo on Wednesday. No change was made in the text of the treaty as originally concluded.

Taking into account, however, the recommendation made by Russia, Germany and France, the Japanese government has agreed to renounce the permanent possession of the Liao-Tung peninsula on condition that the arrangements regarding the terms and form of renunciation shall be reserved for adjustment between itself and the government of China.

This latter stipulation is construed to mean that Japan will not surrender the peninsula until a suitable indemnity shall have been paid, and that it may be even agreed between Japan and China that the possession of Port Arthur itself will be retained by the Japanese for a term of years extending beyond the date when the indemnity has been paid in full, thus assuring to Japan not alone the payment of the indemnity itself, but also sufficient time to safeguard herself against anything like a war of reprisal.

It will be remembered that the treaty of peace itself provides that Wei-Hai-Wei shall be held until the first 100,000,000 of the indemnity and the next two annual installments have been paid, so that with the added guarantee of the possession of Port Arthur, even although temporarily, the Japanese government would appear to have taken every possible precaution for the future.

The foregoing statement is official, coming direct from Tokio by cable. The understanding is that it embodies the reply which Japan recently gave to Russia and the allied powers.

"Rebellion" In France.

PARIS, May 10.—The government will be unable to much longer ignore a rebellion which is gaining ground all over France—that is, a rebellion of the church against the state. The attitude of the bishops is making a great impression on the public mind and the country is being divided into two camps. Only one bishop has had the courage to advocate submission to the law, and he was promptly extinguished by his metropolitan. The strangest part of the affair is the apparent turnabout of the pope. It is an open secret that his holiness will not withhold the papal benediction from those who think it ther duty to resist the droit d'accroissement.

Nicaraguans Want a Protectorate.

(Copyrighted, 1895.)

MANAGUA, via Galveston, May 10.—Prominent Nicaraguans are openly favoring the establishment by the United States of a protectorate over Nicaragua or the interior portion of the central great republic. They declare that peace and prosperity would result and the rich natural resources of Nicaragua would be developed and a financial system be organized by which all of the country's just debts would be canceled. This desire is evidently increasing rapidly now among all prominent Central Americans.
